DEATH OF MISS MACKENZIE

The death of Miss Christine Mackenzie occurred at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. H. A. MacVicar, in Hillcrest, on the morning of January 24, after a lingering illness.

Miss MacKenzie was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Nell C. MacKenzie, of New Waterford, Nova Scotia. She received her education in New Waterford and later her training in nursing in Taunton, Mass., U.S.A., graduating in 1923. Since coming to Alberta in 1927, Miss MacKenzie has resided with her aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. H. A. MacVicar. She was laid to rest in the Hillcrest cemetery on Sunday, January 26th, services at the house and at the cemetery being conducted by Rev. John Wood, of Hillcrest, and Rev. Roy Taylor of Coleman. The young lady's beautiful character endeared her to all who enjoyed the privilege of her acquaintance and the many floral tributes testified to the esteem in which she was held.

Among those who mourn her passing were, besides her aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. MacVicar, three sisters, in Mass., U.S.A., one sister and two brothers in New Waterford, N.S., and a brother in Macdon, N.S.

The Drumheller New Review remarks: "Mr. Aberhart, our premier, now denies that he said there is no newspaper men in heaven. We'll wager he'd like to see them all. We hope we'll not have to listen to Sunday political broadcasts when and if we ever do get to the place of glory."

FIRST PROCLAMATION BY KING EDWARD VIII.

LONDON, Jan. 27.—King Edward VIII's first proclamation was issued Tuesday to Britain's armed forces. The proclamation, addressed to the secretary for war, Lord Halifax, for an immediate broadcast to the armed forces throughout the Empire, said: "I desire on my accession to the throne to express my thanks to the army for its devoted services to my beloved father. I recall with gratitude the noble response which the army made during the Great War to his proud confidence in its loyalty, valor and steadfastness. Its welfare was ever in his thoughts."

"My own association with the army is now of long standing. I look back to my service as a young officer in the Great War as one of the most valuable experiences in my life. It gave me the opportunity and the privilege of comradeships with soldiers drawn from the United Kingdom, from the dominions, India and the colonies."

"I learned to understand and appreciate those essential characteristics which united them in the sternest crisis of our history: the same fervent attachment to the Crown, the same good humor and endurance in adversity and the same determination to uphold the tradition of chivalry and courage which are our common inheritance."

"In the happier days of peace I have been able to see by personal visits, the military forces of the Crown both at home and abroad, and everywhere I noted with pride the same gallant bearing which distinguished those forces in the field. I shall be strengthened in the discharge of the great responsibilities which lie before me by the confidence with which I know I can rely on the unwavering allegiance of all ranks of the military forces of the Crown throughout the Empire."

"EDWARD R.I."

Similar messages also were sent to the navy and the Royal air force.

HERE'S EXPERT FISHING, BEAR LANDS 73 SALMON

Black bears have their good points, no doubt, but perhaps a Dominion fisheries inspector was to be pardoned his scepticism last autumn when he found 73 salmon tossed up within a few yards of one another on stream banks in the Queen Charlotte Islands by an angling brain which hadn't bothered to take more than an occasional bite out of the whole lot of them. Adequate salmon reproduction from year to year is essential, of course, to the successful maintenance of Canada's big Pacific salmon fishery, and here were 73 spawning fish destroyed by a bear at a single spot, without apparent reason except mischievousness or sheer love of hunting. Official records are silent as to what the inspector said, but it is suspected that his lips were hot as they uttered the thoughts that arose in him.

As a matter of fact, there is reason to believe that black bears take rather heavy toll of spawning salmon in the Queen Charlottes, and perhaps in some other parts of British Columbia. In the narrower and shallower streams they find it easy to scoop up the fish with their powerful paws and fling them, struggling ashore, some of them to be devoured at leisure later on, and some of them apparently to be ignored. The number of eggs in female salmon vary more or less, but there are several thousand of them—for instance, female Chums stripped one season at one of the hatcheries operated by the Dominion Department of Fisheries averaged 3,350 eggs—and preying bears can thus cut down reproduction quite substantially. If one chap killed 73 salmon at one spot on one day, or part of a day, the rest of the black bear tribe

THE KNIGHT'S RING

(With grovelling apologies to Theodore Tilton)
Once in Redmore lived a knight
Who upon his ring so bright,
Graved a maxim, strange and wise,
Which when held before his eyes
Gave him counsel at a glance,
Fit for every change or chance;
Solemn words, and these are they—
"Even this will pass away!"

Many comrades, staunch and true,
To his blood-red banner flew.
Radicals all rallied there,
Cast their vote and made him mayor.
But he counted little gain
From his lurid, ruddy reign.
"What is wealth?" the mayor would
"Even this will pass away!"

"Mid the pleasures of his hour,
At the zenith of his power,
Tears with a loud hissing
Auto traffic did retard,
Seated near a Green Hill mine
Said the mayor, "Ah, friends of mine,
Pleasures come, but not to stay,
Even this will pass away!"

Fighting with his usual grin (?)
Once a critic pierced his skin.
"Pain be hard to bear," he cried;
"But with patience, day by day,
Even this will pass away!"

Towering in a Redmore square,
Forty cubits in the air,
Stood his statue, painted red;
And the mayor—sleep in bed—
Gaped upon his sculptured name.
Said the mayor, "What is fame?
Tears leak from his eyes,
Peering at his 'Enterprise'.
Said the knight 'Mount Bartlett's
In his editorial fight.'"

"Read his ring by gray ray—
"Even this will pass away!"

—GONGA, Hillcrest.

BLAIRMORE HOME IS DESTROYED BY FIRE

Fire of unknown origin completely destroyed the home of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Noga, on the north side of the river here, at an early hour Sunday morning.

Fortunately, there was no wind at the time, or other nearby buildings may have met similar fate. Firemen responded quickly to a call, but could accomplish little beyond preventing the flames from reaching other buildings.

Mrs. Noga was rescued in her night clothes as the flames had about reached all parts of the building. Mr. Noga was in Coleman at the time of the fire.

We understand the loss, in the neighborhood of $2,000, is partly covered by insurance.

SPEED TRAPS A LA BRITAIN

Seeking to cramp the style of dashing drivers, speed suppressionists in the United States have evolved an automatic speed trap. It is based on the light ray and photo electric cell principle. The device has a dial which shows the exact speed at which any vehicle has passed over a stretch of road under control. It is hoped also to incorporate in the apparatus a camera which will register this speed, together with the registration number of the car. A British writer wonders why the inventors should stop short. "Why, he ponders, 'not have a barricade which automatically drops down and closes the road if the legal speed has been exceeded, remaining closed until the amount of the fine has been paid into a slot machine?'"

MORE ROPE, PLEASE?

It's an old saying: "Give the animal more rope and he'll hang himself." This should apply to one creature, at least, in Blaimore right now. The hanging day is not far distant.

Mabel: "Well, I kept it for a week. What do you think I am, a cold-storage plant?"

may reasonably be blamed for killing a good many more in the course of a salmon spawning season.

DEATH OF MRS. O. M. OLSON

Death claimed another of the old-timers of The Pass on Monday of this week in the person of Augusta, beloved wife of O. M. Olson, at the advanced age of 70 years.

The late Mrs. Olson was a native of Sweden, and crossed over to the United States about fifty-five years ago. During 1890 she became the wife of O. M. Olson. In 1913 they crossed over into Canada, making their home in Blaimore, where they have since resided. But recently, the aged couple moved into a new home in the central part of the town.

Mrs. Olson is survived by her husband and one son, Albert.

Funeral will take place at 2 p.m. Saturday, service to be held in the Community hall. The remains will be laid to rest in the Blaimore Union cemetery.

By request, no flowers.

FORMER TUTOR KING EDWARD VIII RELATIVE REV. E. G. HANSELL

According to information received, our present federal member, Mr. E. G. Hansell, of Vulcan is a distant relative to the late tutor of the Prince of Wales, now our King Edward VIII. According to the dispatch, the Prince's tutor, Mr. Henry Peter Hansell, died recently at the age of seventy-one. The dispatch follows: Mr. Hansell had no more liking for state ceremonies than has the Prince of Wales. Indeed, it has been said that it is he who taught the Prince his love for informality.

Mr. Hansell had also been tutor to Prince Arthur of Connaught, and to Prince Nicholas of Rumania. He also had a wide experience in naval and air craft courses. In 1919 he was appointed Gentleman Usher to the King and there was general regret in the Royal household when he became the extra Gentleman Usher.

The Lethbridge Herald in commenting on the life of the Prince says, "His tutor, Mr. Hansell, was one of the most active agents in the moulding of the Prince's earlier life, and the implanting of certain great principles, which are outside of the routine of the Royal Palace. Mr. Hansell ordered hours of work, organized leisure, supervised conduct and arranged holidays and amusements, in building the ground work of a general education."

The young Prince was not instructed in the wearing of the crown, but taught to "play the game." An isolated individual in a royal apartment, he was to be a unit of community spread over the empire, and he quickly realized that although his father, Mr. Hansell, and duty expected a tremendous lot of him, he felt that he had to do what he could about it.

Mr. Hansell, our member, is maintaining the exact relationship between the Prince's tutor and himself. —Vulcan Advocate.

WHAT AN INSULT!

The Edmonton Bulletin, in its "Publishers' Parade" at the annual convention: "Always an outstanding character and favorite with the weekly publishers, W. J. 'Shorty' Bartlett, of the Blaimore Enterprise arrived, his seven foot two inches towering through the door. The porters on trains invariably knock down the partition between two berths to make room for 'Shorty,' grinned Commentator McCrea, amid a general laugh in which the Blaimore publisher joined." —Coleman Journal.

PREMIER OF ALBERTA EXTENDS GREETINGS

I am happy to avail myself of this opportunity to convey through the "Voice of Motordom" my greetings to the members of the Alberta Motor Association. May I wish the Association every success in its activities during the year upon which we have just entered.

The New Year has already been marked by an announcement of government policy of first concern to the motorist. I am pleased to learn that the new annual driver's license and the extension of the motor license year have met with the general approval of Alberta motorists. Travel by motor continues to assume a place of increasing importance in the life of our province. It is well that we have an association devoting itself to the welfare and convenience of the growing number of people who use this means of transportation.

I am hoping that in the not too distant future we may have hard-surfaced main highways running from the southern part of the province connecting the main centres and points of interest by way of Banff, Calgary, Edmonton and Jasper.

WM. ABERHART, Premier of Alberta.

—Voice of Motordom.

GOOD DRIVERS "ARRESTED"

To be arrested by police, brought in court and "fined" has been the experience of many Minneapolis car drivers who have never violated a traffic law or hit a pedestrian. In fact, it is reported, watchful policemen have been spending a good part of their time "arresting" the better drivers of that city. And the drivers "take it and like it" for the "fine" imposed is a gift of a new set of 1936 plates, presented through the courtesy of the Minneapolis Star. This unique practice has been adopted to encourage good driving, so that it may be an honor as well as a disgrace to be haled into court. A trade paper expresses the hope that the idea will be widely accepted and that the names of the best drivers in a town will appear in an "honor roll" in the newspapers.

"That was no fat lady. That was me, girl friend! You see, I and me girl were dancing in this dump when suddenly she passes out. So I holler, 'Air! Air! Give her air!' So what happens! Some bloke from a service station comes running up and slips her thirty pounds."

WORLD HAPPENINGS BRIEFLY TOLD

The fortune of the late Rudyard Kipling, has been estimated at $750,000 (approximately $3,750,000) by The London Sunday Express.

Suggestions he renounce his claim to the Spanish throne were vigorously rejected by former King Alfonso, well-informed sources said.

The Japanese parliament was dissolved after a resolution of non-confidence in the government was introduced in the lower house. A general election has been called for Feb. 20.

One hundred and ninety-six persons received serum inoculations against diphtheria as a result of an outbreak of the disease at Wabunan, Alta.

Warships aggregating 110,500 tons are under construction in German shipyards, the naval monthly magazine Rundschau said in a survey of recent fleet building progress at the beginning of 1938.

The United Church still requires $380,000 to balance its accounts for this year, Dr. Robert Laird, general treasurer, told the Toronto centenary presbytery. To date the church has received $1,280,000.

Tom-toms, throbbing throughout Africa, carried the news of King George's death to the most remote regions. Instances were reported in which the natives heard of the death before the whites learned it through newspapers and radio.

The Victorian branch of the Bill Posters' Union, of which King Edward is a member, sent a message of sympathy. It is believed His Majesty is the only monarch who has ever been a member of the trades union. (He is also a member of the International Pressmen's and Assistants' Union of Canada and the U.S.A.)

New Insulin Compound

British Columbia Salmon Aid in Struggle Against Diabetes

British Columbia salmon are aiding in the struggle against diabetes, Dr. Francis White of Boston, famous for his research in the fight against diabetes, told a distinguished gathering of scientists and doctors in Toronto.

An ingredient from salmon, combined with insulin, is used to produce the new protamine insulin, a compound developed by Dr. H. C. Hagedorn, of Copenhagen, and other Danish doctors, for treatment of diabetes. The new compound was announced this week by the Journal of the American Medical Association.

Perils of Antarctic Flying

Discover Great Ranges Of Lefty Mountains On Hazardous Journey Lincoln Ellsworth, Antarctic explorer, in a copyright despatch from aboard the motor ship Witasp to the New York Times and the North American Newspaper Alliance, described the perils of the attempted flight across Antarctica by himself and Herbert Hollick-Kenyon, of Winnipeg.

Of Hollick-Kenyon, the despatch said he skillfully piloted the explorer's aeroplane the Polar Star, across Antarctica. They gazed with awe at great mountain ranges rising to a height of 12,000 feet, across which they flew before they were forced down near Little America.

When they landed on "the only unclaimed land in the world" on Nov. 23 last, Ellsworth reported he named the United States flag, with the permission of the United States state department, and named the area, between Hearst Land and Marie Byrd Land, James V. Ellsworth Land, after his father.

He added that he named the plateau on which they landed, about 6,000 feet above sea level, Hollick-Kenyon plateau.

King George Had Narrow Escape

Fell Into Halifax Harbor When He Was A Naval Midshipman

Death brushed elbows more than once with the future King George V. in his younger days as a naval midshipman in Halifax.

Once, a halibut plunged into the water to save him when he had fallen into Halifax harbor. Another time a halibut came upon him on an angling trip fished him out of Mill lake after he had found the lumberman's log-rolling stunt too tricky for the royal fleet.

Again, while he was in Halifax in the 80's as a midshipman on H.M.S. Canada, police broke up a suspected attempt to blow up the ship. Two men involved in the alleged plot were arrested and sent to jail.

J. J. Mulrooney received an engraved watch for the harbor rescue. As for many years after the incident he treasured a naval uniform which the then prince gave him to replace his own sodden clothes.

On the fishing trip Neil MacLean of Hubbard was the prince's companion. He did not know until long after that the youngster he pulled out of the lake was the prince.

Making School Attractive

New System Of Teaching Primary Grade Pupils

Farm women of Alberta learned of a new system of teaching primary grade pupils.

The system calls for pupil participation instead of pupil listening and has already been adopted in 60 Alberta schools.

Mrs. W. Ross, convener of the committee on education and Miss Mary Crawford, of Edmonton, explained the new method at the annual convention of the United Farm Women of Alberta.

Miss Crawford said children like to imitate the action of adults, and situations similar to real ones among adults must be presented in the classroom. The told of one class of seven and eight-year-olds who were busy playing house when she visited them in the school room.

"They were working in committees, making articles used in houses," she said. "When time came to go home they did not want to leave the classroom."

New Map Of Canada

Department Of The Interior Issues Valuable Map Of Handy Size The Topographical and Air Survey Bureau, Department of the Interior, Ottawa, has just issued a new map of Canada on the scale of 100 miles to one inch which will be found of interest to all those persons who have use for a small scale map of the Dominion.

The best map of Canada printed by the Department of the Interior is published on the scale of 35 miles to one inch in four separate sheets which, when joined together, cover a space about 4 1/2 feet by 8 1/2 feet, making an excellent wall map if one has such a space available. There is another map of intermediate size on the scale of 60 miles to one inch which is very convenient for desk use or as a small wall map.

The new map has been produced to meet the demand for a more map of handy size, useful for general reference purposes. It is 25 inches by 36 inches and fits into a large size drawer or a small space on the wall. This map shows all of Canada south of latitude 42° 30' N. including all but some of the northern islands. All the larger physical features, such as lakes, rivers and islands, are depicted in correct position. The boundaries of the provinces and territories are outlined. All cities and towns are shown and all the railways are drawn in, but without the intermediate small stations being named. The latitude and longitude lines are drawn and from them it may be seen that southern Ontario lies in the same latitude as Boston, while the southernmost tip of the Ontario peninsula is as far south as the northern end of the state of California.

According to the latest figures, the land area of fresh water lakes in Canada, according to provinces and territories, is given in the following table:

	Square Miles
Prince Edward Island.....	2,184
Nova Scotia.....	21,800
New Brunswick.....	27,985
Quebec.....	94,534
Ontario.....	104,191
Manitoba.....	246,512
Saskatchewan.....	251,700
Alberta.....	251,700
British Columbia.....	366,255
Yukon Territory.....	207,076
Northwest Territories.....	1,809,682
Total.....	3,094,983

Lake Superior is the largest lake shown on the map. It and Lakes Huron, Erie, and Ontario are in Ontario and the United States. Of the lakes lying wholly within Canada, Great Bear lake is the largest with an expanse of 11,950 square miles. Other large lakes over 1,000 square miles area include Great Slave, Winnipeg, Athabasca, Winnipegosis, Manitoba, Nipigon, Southern Indian, Reindeer, Du-bawnt, La Martre, and Lake of the Woods.

Canada has some great river systems, the Mackenzie being 2,500 miles in length from its mouth to its headwaters, and the St. Lawrence 1,900 miles. Other great rivers over 1,000 miles in length include the Nelson, Saskatchewan, Churchill, Columbia, Peace and Yukon.

Mount Logan is the highest mountain in Canada, with an altitude of 19,850 feet. In addition to it there are 66 other mountain peaks above 11,000 feet in height.

Copies of this map may be obtained from the Surveyor General, Department of the Interior, Ottawa, for 25 cents per copy. As it is a useful school map, one copy will be supplied free to any school for official use, upon application of the teacher or school board.

Spoons Older Than Forks

Were Carried In Handsome Case During Middle Ages

In these civilized days it is difficult to realize that our first forks were our fingers and the earliest spoons the hollow of our hands.

The spoon is thought to be older than the knife and fork. According to the fashion of the Middle Ages it was carried in a case in the belt of the wearer, with other table tools. The cases were frequently as handsome as the tools.

From the sixteenth century more cutlery sets were made. As in modern times, they were often given as presentation sets. Many fine old silver spoons are still prized as family heirlooms. The seal-top, the rat-tail, and the fiddle were three popular designs and the fiddle pattern is used to-day.

Unlike knife blades, the bowls of spoons were seldom etched or engraved.

Early spoons were of bone, ivory, and wood. Visitors to Holland and Switzerland will sometimes bring back delicately carved spoons and salad servers which are made by the peasants.

Will Publish Periodical To Assist Writers

The Writers' Club, Toronto, has announced its decision to publish a periodical entitled "Fiction," as a non-commercial venture by which it hopes to discover writers and help the writers discover a market.

"The so-called formula type of story, for which there is already a commercial market, is not sought," says a statement from the club. "Fiction" will not pay for stories, but will vest the copyright for each contribution in the author. It will be circulated largely among editors.

E. J. O'Brien, compiler of short story anthologies, is announced as advisory editor of the new publication.

Means Luxury In China

Widow Of Chinese Market Gardener Gets $2,000 Estate

Picturesque details of a wedding performed 35 years ago in China—a wedding that lasted through four days of feasting, ancestor worshiping, and present giving—were unfolded in district court chambers at Edmonton, before Judge Crawford. Proof of the wedding was required before an order could be made granting the widow of a Chinese market gardener his estate valued at about $2,000. The order was granted.

The application on behalf of Wong Lee, 62-year-old widow of Charlie Mah Yee, who died in Edmonton in 1921 without a will, was presented by the Chinese consul-general for Canada, through J. T. J. Collins, K.C. Only two factors could nullify the marriage, the vows disclosed—death or leprosy.

By the court order the widow in China, 15 years after her husband died, will receive the money held in trust by the provincial government during that time, which will place her in the lap of luxury in her native village.

Need More Food

Five Meals A Day Increases Factory Output

Angel cake and five meals a day may increase the productivity of factory operatives as much as 10 per cent. This is the discovery of two Yale University scientists, Dr. H. W. Haggard and L. A. Greenberg, as recorded in a book, "Diet and Physical Efficiency."

They have studied a group of persons who work in a shoe factory. It is found that eating five times a day tends to reduce industrial fatigue. The angel cake is in the picture because some of the subjects of the experiments might have declined the daily five had they been denied this particular delicacy. The scientific mind sees more value in a glass of milk and a vegetable salad.

FRUIT-A-TIVES GAVE QUICK RELIEF FROM SEVERE HEADACHES AND CONSTIPATION

Mrs. P. Longway, Guelph, says, "For many years I have suffered from severe headaches and constipation. Then I tried Fruit-a-tives. They brought me quick relief and I have never been bothered since."

Prepared by a prominent Canadian physician, Fruit-a-tives contain concentrated extracts of APPLES, PEACHES, FIGS, PRUNES and HERBS. They do not contain harsh purgatives but, instead, act in a natural way. They tend to strengthen all organs of elimination. Thus, with their exclusive tonic effects, Fruit-a-tives help bring lasting good health.

JESUS ENLISTS HELPERS

Golden text: They left all, and followed him. Luke 5:11.

Lesson: Luke 5.

Devotional reading: Isaiah 62:6-12.

Explanations And Comments

The Call of Peter, Luke 5:1-11. The western side of the Lake of Gennesaret, or the Sea of Galilee, is better known to us as being densely populated in the first century. One day Jesus stood on the shore near Caesarea Phila where there were washing their nets to free them from the mud, weeds and stones which they had taken from the lake.

To escape from the thronging crowd about him, Jesus drew a fishing boat belonging to Simon Peter and asked him to push off a little distance from the land. Then asking him to be taught the clear, rippling water playing gently round the boat, comments Dr. Gellie, "the fields and vineyards and olive groves behind; the eager listeners with their varied and picturesque Eastern dress; the wonderful preacher; the calmness and delicious coolness of the morning; and, over all, the cloudless Syrian sky must have made a scene striking in the extreme."

When he had finished his talk, Jesus turned to Simon and bade him launch out into the deep and let down his nets for a draught. In amazement Simon answered, "Master, we have toiled all night and have taken nothing! Success was wholly unlikely at that time of day and in deep water, he thought, for fish were caught at night and near the shore."

"Nevertheless at thy word I will let down the net," Simon added. "It was the language of prompt and full obedience. It showed that Simon's nature was responsive. He had learned to obey, which was the first lesson of discipleship; and, having learned to obey, he was therefore fit to be qualified for leadership." (Henry Burton).

The result of Simon's obedience was so great a catch that his partners, James and John (verse 10), had to be called to his aid, for his net was in danger of breaking from the weight of fish within it. Then in great fear and astonishment Simon fell at the feet of Jesus exclaiming, "Depart from me, for I am a sinful man, O Lord." "It was an act so wonderful and kindly that Peter saw, and seeing, he followed. Have we not all experienced that judgment—the silent judgment of some noble act? Nothing was said, but something fine was done, and seeing it so done, we were subdued. In the acts of Jesus, all of them acts of love and acts of grace, there lay the power, in unequal measure, of leading men with a strange self-reproach." (H. Morrison).

To Record Earthquakes

Observatory Has Been Established In Mine In Silesia

In a mine 1,400 feet underground a new seismology laboratory has been established near Baethen, Silesia. It will be connected in connection with the Observatory of Upper Silesia, and is to be used to record earthquakes and for the study of all sorts of geographical phenomena relative to the movements of the earth's crust.

FLEMING'S FOLLY

—BY—
LAWRENCE A. KEATINGE

SYNOPSIS

The story opens with Link Fleming addressing a meeting of Boone County cattlemen, called together with the object of forming an irrigation company.

Roger Kilgo, the boss of the Rawhide and nearby ranges, who seemed to approve the plan, but was really opposed to it, had forced Soak Torney, a derelict mining engineer, whom Kilgo knew would be called upon to give his expert opinion in favor of the scheme, to reveal his earlier endorsement, and declare that irrigation in Boone county so far as Hamilton's plan was concerned, was only a new-fangled way to waste money.

The meeting terminates, but Buzz Hamilton and his sister, Helen, Link and Kilgo stay behind and Helen asks Fleming questions about his irrigation plan. This angers Buzz, who accuses Fleming of trying to influence his sister and, as he asserts, ruin his "spread". Buzz shoots at Fleming in an uncontrollable fit of anger, but Buster Townsend, Link's foreman, is shot in the stomach, and Fleming is uninjured. Buzz is arrested. The doctor attends Townsend and dresses his wound. Kilgo then suggests taking Helen to her home, but she refuses and Fleming escorts her home instead. This incident causes Roger to declare open hostility to Fleming. Helen and Fleming form a partnership to provide irrigation to the blighted properties. Link goes home, and is surprised to find Kilgo there ahead of him. Kilgo tries to force him to drop his scheme, and when Fleming refuses, gives a signal by taking off his hat, and Link is shot at from outside the house.

Link kills Kilgo out of the house. Buzz Hamilton is sentenced to three years' imprisonment for shooting Buzz Townsend.

(Now Go On With The Story)

As he rode down the curling road toward Iron Spring, Link gazed absently into the bleak swirl of blowing snow. The road was streaked with it but the fall was dry and light, insufficient to annoy a blizzard. A sharp wind was blowing down from the mountains, and the lone horseman buttoned his heavy corduroy jacket tighter over his chest. He was thinking of the dam and the plans he had talked over a score of times with Soak Torney, the engineer. In his mind's eye he envisioned the thing completed, a shining white concrete structure blocking a narrow point in Silver Creek. It need not be a big project to store up ditch water for twenty-five hundred acres, his own and Triple H land. But its cost would be a heavy burden on the two modest spreads.

He would have to get in touch with someone to replace Torney. What had become of Soak anyhow? No one had seen him since the meeting; he seemed to have evaporated into thin air. Had he left the section?

Link remembered a man who might carry on in Soak's place. Tom McLendon, a young engineer, he had done a favor in a cave brawl on the Border. He determined to write to Tom and propose his coming here to direct the job.

He began to whistle. The ears of his trotting mount twitched back, and the rider chuckled. The picture of the dam perished in fading for another and perhaps more alluring one of a young girl. She was dressed in riding trousers, a man's flannel shirt, Stetson, necktie and heavy buckskin jacket with a knail collar.

the man's name who had plotted all this!

Soak stepped back a pace. His eyes were steady, now, glowing with determination. "Give a snake, Link. You'll sure be surprised! The guy that made me lie at that meeting, and—"

The crackle of a Winchester cut the crisp air. Fleming leaped back, plunging under his jacket for the Colt that rode there. Soak Torney threw up his hands and uttered a cry of pain and fear. His face was paper-white as he staggered, tripped, and pitched heavily full length in the road dust.

"It was... it was..."

The words died away in a thin whisper. Torney's slight frame twitched, then lay still. Link needed no closer inspection to tell him the man was dead.

CHAPTER VI.

Link whirled and plunged for the safety of the trees. He was in the nick of time, for the next instant the Winchester uttered its throaty roar again. The bullet gouged through the high crown of his anvil hat. Hoing it from his head and carrying it some eight feet away. Another shot went wild.

With sixgun ready and every sense alert, he started a round-about way toward the approximate source of the shooting. Twenty yards covered failed to locate anyone, and he paused to listen. But his ears could detect no footfalls, and certainly, he thought, sounds of a man moving over hard-packed ground should carry to him.

After some reflection he continued the search always wary lest the unknown slayer of Torney fire another time. The patch of cottonwoods, roughly diamond in shape, bordered the cold flowing water of Iron Spring as it ran several hundred feet before disappearing underground in sandy loam.

Link stepped from cover, his Colt raised. "Don't move for your gun!"

A man on his knees beside the stream turned sharply. "Hub!" Jack pot Mell, owner of the Half Moon Saloon in Rawhide, rose to his full height. He scowled indignantly at the weapon pointed his way.

"What's the idea, Link? Gunnin' for somebody?"

They watched each other with the wary suspicion of two animals. "Where's your Winchester, Mell?"

"The man shook his head. "Never carry one. It's too doggone much bother, and I always been pretty lucky with forty-fives. Say," he demanded curiously, "what's this all about, anyhow?"

True, Link had never seen Jackpot with a rifle that he could recall. The man's boned-out sixguns had accounted for seven victims over a period of as many years. Mell was a killer, nerveless, deliberate and wholly lacking in mercy. He had the reputation of being Kilgo's only confidant, also Roger's "law enforcement" man. More than one individual who had crossed the Box 50 owner's path had, by some odd quirk of fate, also angered Mell. The result was a shooting that had the appearance of being justified.

His draw was swifter than the eye could follow. In fact, it was a dry joke among Boone County citizens that "nobody ever saw Jackpot draw."

Could he have done this thing, killed Soak Torney? Fleming reflected that he probably was not a good Winchester shot. Few big marksmen were expert with rifles.

"What's the idea holdin' me here?" he snapped sourly. "I ain't got all day!"

"Didn't hear any shooting I suppose?"

Jackpot looked thoughtful. "Well, there was some noise a few minutes ago. But I didn't pay much attention; thought it was a branch snapping off just wastered my boss there—" He indicated a sleek roan—"he stepped down to water myself. Yuh think I shot somebody?"

"Soak Torney was murdered as he and I were talking, and they took two shots at me but missed."

Jackpot smoothed a crumple in his flowered vest before pulling it down over his wide fancy leather belt. His long-tailed black coat was scarcely heavy enough for the brisk leather, and he twitched his shoulders as if chilly. "Too bad!"

"Too bad he missed!"

"Aw, Link, what makes yuh think that? Seems like a powerful waste of lead for anyone to shoot Torney. He was drinkin' himself into a nice big grave anyhow."

Fleming, without holstering his gun, began to walk around the spot, glancing behind trees and into shrubs to determine whether Jackpot had a Winchester concealed anywhere. There was no rifle on the man's horse, nor any look for one. If he had dropped it in the scant foliage nearby he should be able to find it. No other person was in sight.

The gambler watched, faintly amused and knowing "what Link sought," "Save yourself the trouble, 'cause I haven't a rifle along to-day. Here I'm takin' a peaceful drink of water and yuh charge in like Ames Stephen before election. Fine way to treat an old pal!" he complained loudly. "Why, if it wasn't for me yuh'd never got that sixteen hundred acres of no-good land. We took your cash that night, but I always believe in exchange to prevent squawkin'."

All Made By Hand

Firm In Glasgow Still Turning Out Clay Pipes

Time was when the working man did not think of smoking any kind of pipe except a "clay". Wooden pipes have become cheaper, the cigarette has helped to change smoking habits, and most pipe smokers would think it "cheap" to be seen with the old-fashioned clay. But in Glasgow there is a firm 150 years old, which still turns out 150,000 clay pipes a year, about 50,000 of these being exported. Many apparently come to Canada, for a reporter who looked over the factory recently saw cases ready to ship to Montreal.

It is surprising to learn that there are 2,000 molds in this factory, each making a different pipe. The bowls can be made into all kinds of shapes, and the faces of prominent men of past and present generations, look out from the front of the bowl, such as Scott and Burns, Baldwin and MacDonald. What is still more remarkable, the firm also make "churchwardens," those pipes with the 20-inch long stems which are the mouths of the holy fellows of Tudor times and later. The longer the stem the cooler the smoke. A lot of dyes are baked brown through and through with a chemical so that one can hardly detect a clay from a briar. This may be a concession to the pious chap who prefers a clay but does not like to advertise the fact that he is smoking one.

The trade, however, has fallen away greatly. The Glasgow firm employed 100 men before the World War; now they only employ a dozen. The period of apprenticeship used to be seven years; it is now shortened to one. Yet considerable dexterity is required to make clay pipes. They are made by hand—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

Germany's Air Force

Under Control Of World's Most Alarmed Mind

It has been openly stated in France that the German military strength is now three times that of France herself. That proportion is rapidly increasing in favor of Germany. She possesses an air arm not only the finest of its kind technically and of the greatest strength numerically, but also before the war the control of men more thoroughly air-minded than any in the world. Like her opposite number in the Far East, Japan, Germany has expansionist aspirations; she has the means to fulfill them, and she has the will to apply those means—London Sunday Dispatch.

People Are United

The difference between a dictatorship and a monarchy is illustrated by the following from the lips of His Late Majesty King George V. of Great Britain: "It is good to think that our own family of peoples is at peace in itself, and united in one desire to be at peace with other nations."

Antique With A History

Old Oaken Bucket Has Been Used For 150 Years

Many antiques have a history and here is one which has been in constant use for much more than 100 years. It is an old oaken bucket, shaped out of the Chippawa Creek at Cleator Centre, Ontario, by a pike cutter for some 50 years. Legend has it that when it was cut there were people to fish out logs and wood during the spring freshets. This little barrel which is eight inches high and five inches across, has been used as a utensil for salting cattle for some 50 years. Last year when it fell into the hands of its present owner, Judson Merritt, of Waterford, Ontario, it was taken to the house and better care taken of it, but still it was used as a salt container and never been taken out of its landing in this family some 150 years ago. Its original use was as an oyster barrel built for shipping oysters. It has been promised to be handed down to a niece, who lives near where it was found, at the passing of the present owner.

272 PRIZES IN THIS NEW CONTEST

Next week you'll read an advertisement in this paper of Coats' and Clark's 6-cord Spool Cotton and Thread.

In it they offer 272 prizes in cash or merchandise.

No entry money is needed—simply a top ticket from a spool of Coats' or Clark's Thread and the coupon from the paper or an entry form from a dealer.

Remember, however, that the last entries must be postmarked not later than April 4, 1936.

We wish our readers much success and ask them to watch for the advertisement next week—you have 272 chances to win!

Hints For The Cook

Various Terms Signify Ways Of Combining Ingredients

There is considerable difference in the terms used to signify various ways of combining recipes. Stirring—Is mixing with a spoon in a rotary motion in order to blend thoroughly. Beating—Is mixing with a vigorous up and over motion using a spoon, wire whip or beater. It is means of getting air into the mixture by lifting it from the bottom of the bowl to the top. Kneading—Is a process of stretching and pressing doughs with the hands or a mechanical kneader.

How Name Originated

Did you ever hear how sirloin steak got its name? Well, it seems that King James I. of England had enjoyed a fine meal which had for its chief feature a rare piece of "loin steak." As he finished eating, the king drew his sword and smiling what was left of the meat, said jestingly, "I dub thee Sir Loin." The name stuck.

Little Helps For This Week

Bless the Lord O my soul, and forget not all His benefits. Psalm 103:2.

Wiser, it were to welcome and make more. What ever of good, though small, the present brings. Kind greeting, sunshine, song of birds, and flowers. With a child's pure delight in little things.

Into all our lives, in many simple familiar homely ways, God infuses the element of joy from surprises of life which unexpectedly brighten our days and fill our eyes with light. He drops this added sweetness into His children's cup and makes it to run over. The success we were not counting on, the blessing we were not trying after, the strain of music in the midst of drudgery, the beautiful morning picture or sunset glory thrown in as we pass to or from our daily business, the unthought word of encouragement or expression of sympathy, the sentence that meant for us more than the writer or speaker thought; these and a hundred other that every one's experience can supply are instances. You may call it accident or chance; it often is; you may call it human goodness, which it often is, but always call it God's love, for that is always in it. These are the overflowing riches of His grace, these are His free gifts.

Citrus Fruits In Victoria

Head Gardener At Empress Hotel Has Ripe Tangerines

At the Empress Hotel recently, says the Victoria, B.C., Colonist, visitors were surprised to see, outside the ballroom, a small tree laden with full-sized tangerines, ripe and temptingly ready for picking. F. A. Saunders, head gardener at the Empress, has been nursing the tree along for about sixteen years, and was exceedingly proud to be able at last to show his crop of 25 "juices." "The fruit is of the 'Mandarin' or kid glove variety, imported from Japan in such quantities about this time of the year. The hotel management reports that large lemons are now grown in the hothouses."

WHAT'S HIS COLOR?

Mayor Knight denies he was ever a Communist, yet he had to be regarded as such to be chosen delegate to the Toronto conference, fighting against war and fascism. He was regarded as a full-blooded Communist when greeted by Rev. East, Rev. Smith and others in Blairmore, together with an attempt to erect a monument for Tim Buck on our main street, still on the records, fortunately, as Victoria Street. And there were other instances where the bluff worked perfectly.

Monday next has been named nomination day, with elections, if necessary, on the 10th. Very little interest is being manifested. Various names have been suggested as possible candidates for town council and school trustees.

Some Pass business concerns are tied down to advertising contracts, but not with the press. We doubt if there is a business concern in the Crows' Nest Pass that is or ever has been tied down to such a contract with The Blairmore Enterprise or The Coleman Journal—the established Press of The Pass.

Revenue from Hill—Sixty, apart probably from light, is not accounted for in the auditor's report of the town of Blairmore. And if reports are true that the mayor has derived revenue from that source, the income tax authorities at both Edmonton and Ottawa should be on the lookout for it.

Compare these figures with Blairmore's. They are taken from the report of Auditor E. D. Batturum for the Town of Coleman for the year 1935: Salaries (town) $900.00, telephone accounts $31.50, election expense $9.50 sundry relief $3,041.16; licenses collected $1,145.50, dog taxes collected $226.25, garbage collection fees $214.35, no extra office help.

A bulletin circulated in Blairmore last week end, and signed only by the Communist Party of Canada, should be brought to the attention of the provincial government or the Mounted Police for some sort of action. As a result of its circulation, it has aroused so much of curiosity in the minds of school pupils that it has been a more popular subject with them than school lessons. Pupils have been heard to ask the question: "What is that prostitute stuff that the mayor got five dollars for, etc?" Really, it is time that the Edmonton authorities took cognizance of some of the raw stuff that the decent element of Blairmore's population have to put up with.

In the verbal dog-fight between Premier Reid and Premier Aberhart over the provincial finances, we can see very little consolation for either one. We have sympathy for Mr. Reid's personal feelings, but he surely has been in the game of politics long enough to know that such talk is part of the old political bunk. As for the Premier himself, one can hardly believe that he really expected to find any money in the treasury when he took office. If he did expect it, it would indicate a deplorable lack of understanding of provincial affairs, not only in Alberta, but all over the Dominion. As for the savings certificate situation, it was distinctly a reaction to the election situation and not one of administration. There was no justification for panic, in our opinion.—Clareholm Local Press.

THE CENTRALIZATION OF SCHOOLS

That there are many grave defects in Alberta's School System one cannot deny. Chief among these defects briefly stated are the following:

(1) The needs of rural education are not adequately served. At least 97% of the boys and girls in rural schools who have completed Grade 1 find no way by which they can have access to High School education.

(2) The spread in rural assessment is too great. Some school boards levy a rate 20 times as high as others.

(3) The conditions of employment of rural teachers are not uniform. No teacher however good will be in different to security of tenure, salary and an agreeable environment.

(4) The small unit is not efficient. Each of the 27 inspectors of elementary schools is assigned on an average 152 school districts and 171 class rooms. Yet rural teachers, many of them inexperienced, are called upon to face some of the most perplexing problems in the whole field of education. Clearly they need help from an inspector who has little time to give it.

(5) The small unit is not economical. The present system includes 3500 school boards, 3500 secretaries, 3500 auditors.

(6) Educational opportunities in rural schools are not equal to that in urban schools.

(7) We need diversified education, but we cannot provide it. The proposed scheme of centralization, briefly stated, is that the Province shall be divided into 43 or 45 central districts, each containing from 65 to 100 schools. Each central district would be operated by a Board of 5 directors, who would be elected by the ratepayers of that district. The Divisional Board would have powers analogous to those enjoyed by the trustees in city and town municipalities today.

The school boards as at present constituted would remain and act in an advisory capacity to the Divisional Board.

Each Division would constitute a general taxing area for the purpose of providing the funds required for the minimum educational services for which the Divisional Board is responsible. The levy to be made on equalized assessment.

That a great saving in the cost of administration would result may be gathered from the fact that one secretary and one auditor would suffice for each Central District.

In purchasing of equipment, a vast saving would result. The Central Board would purchase equipment for all schools in the district.

The only additional cost, so far as is now known, would result in the increase of the present supervisory staff from 27 (inspectors) to, say, 43 or 45.

Some of the advantages claimed for the proposed system are:

(1) Cost of education would be distributed equally throughout the province.

(2) Equalization of educational opportunities for elementary school units of the province.

(3) In the field of secondary school education, the Central Board could take a broad view of the secondary school problem. It could decide how and to what extent secondary education should be provided; it could determine what type of training it would make provision for—academic, commercial, technical or a combination of all; and it could decide where the schools would be placed in order to best meet the requirements of the largest number. The larger administrative unit offers the best answer that has yet been advanced to the vexed question of secondary instruction in strictly rural areas.

(4) The administration of education as a whole would be placed in more capable hands.

(5) Under the Centralized System the secondary schools should prepare pupils for life and not solely for the University.

(6) In the new curriculum of the Public and High Schools to be issued in September of this year, provision will be made for optional subjects. Instructions in manual arts, domestic science and other branches of education so necessary will be made available in the schools. Expert teachers will travel from school to school giving instruction in his or her particular line. Thus our children will be under the instruction of experts. The Centralized System has already been tried out in Alberta in two districts, Turner Valley and Berry Creek, the former representing a wealthy district the latter a very poor district and in each of these districts great advantages have resulted.

The Centralized System of schools is at present operating successfully in England, Scotland, New Zealand, Australia, 12 states of the United States, also in British Columbia and Quebec.

Regarding the unique position of the school district in the Rocky Mountain Constituency, I have the assurance of the Deputy Minister of Education that the Centralized System will not apply to us. But no doubt when the system is in operation some plan of centralization of teaching might profitably be employed in each end of our constituency. For instance, one man might be employed who would teach manual arts in the towns of Banff, Exshaw, Camrose and Seebe; and similarly one man could be employed to teach one subject in each town in the Crows' Nest Pass.

E. O. DUKE, M.L.A.,
Rocky Mountain Constituency,

The people who believe it can't be done are willing to give Mr. Aberhart ample time to do it. The confounded grumbling comes from those who believe it can be done and who want it done at once.—Ex.

PASSING THE BUCK

"Passing the Buck" is natural, but as a help in building business it is a washout. All of us are instinctively buck-passers, Father Adam started the practice when he put on an innocent expression and passed the buck to Eve for having tempted him. Eve passed it on to the serpent, of course. History does not record to whom the serpent passed it, but that he did pass it on goes without much question. But that did not help the three of them a bit. They all received their walking pass out of the Garden of Eden.

You and I pass the buck once successfully—we may even do so twice—but eventually it will turn the tables and pass us out of the front door. In a well-organized business institution, everyone has certain duties. They are responsible for certain results. It does not make an iota's worth of difference who makes the mistakes; the party responsible is not only the actual offender, but those also who assume responsibility for his actions. No head of a business—if he is worth the position—would think of passing the buck to a subordinate, should the institution turn up in the red at the end of the year. He is responsible—and if he cannot run the institution so as to make money, it is just too bad. By the same token, the general manager must assume full responsibility within his sphere of action, so must the superintendent, the foreman, the sales manager, the office manager, right down the line until you get to the individual who can assume direct responsibility only for his own actions. When it is possible for a lot of buck-passing to be practiced and to get by, then you can be sure that it is being practiced in an organization that lacks clear-cut responsibility. Every employee should know who is over him—and every executive who has over anyone should know just by whose authority he begins and ends. There should be no twilight zones in 1936. It is easy to put a brake on misused authority—but where adequate authority is lacking the machine will run wild and may end in the ditch.—Cranbrook Courier.

"Now," said the school teacher, "give me a definition of space."

Junior stood up, flustered and red. "Space," he began, "is where there is nothing. I can't explain it exactly, but I have it in my head alright."

Swede: "How come you rip your pants?"

"Oh, crawlin' through a barb-wire fence after a chicken."

HILLCREST HAPPENINGS

Miss Christina MacKenzie passed away at the age of thirty-five at the home of her aunt, Mrs. H. A. MacVicar, on Friday morning. Miss MacKenzie had been ill for several years. The remains were laid to rest on Sunday afternoon. Pallbearers were Alex. Grant, Angus Grant, Bill Richards, Adam Pollock, George Hicken and Robert Henderson.

A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. W. Hollenbeck last week.

Mrs. Walker, who has been a patient in the Calgary General hospital, returned home last week end.

Mrs. A. McKay, of Trail, B.C., is visiting at the home of her mother here, Mrs. G. Bamforth.

A memorial service, in memory of the late King George the Fifth, was held in Coie's theatre on Tuesday afternoon. The service opened with the singing of "O Canada." Two minutes of silence was observed, followed by the "Dead March," played by Mrs. Wood. Speakers were: Father Morrow, Mr. Rhyi and Rev. John Wood. The service was brought to a close with the singing of "God Save The King." The Brownies, Girl Guides and Rangers, together with their leaders, attended, parading to and from the service.

Mrs. Walter Role is visiting friends in Calgary.

COWLEY HAPPENINGS

Mrs. Archie Swart has returned from Lethbridge, where she spent a few days visiting with friends and relatives.

Miss Jean Morrison is at present a Calgary visitor.

Harry Pratten, of Natal, B.C., was renewing old acquaintances in Cowley on Tuesday.

Mrs. F. A. Tustian held a quilting bee at her home on Wednesday afternoon, when a number of ladies plied the needle and thread at this almost forgotten art, as they chatted away, speeding rapidly as they did, up to the time when a dainty luncheon was served by the hostess.

Florence Maloff, who was left a cripple from a bad case of infantile paralysis nine years ago, left for Winnipeg by train on Friday afternoon last, where she will be a patient in the Shriners' hospital for crippled children. She was accompanied on the journey by her father.

Mrs. Ethel Bouthillier, who has been on an extended visit to her girlhood home in Prince Edward Island and points in the States, has returned. On her homeward journey, while stopping off for a visit with her sister in Minnesota, she had the misfortune to fall down a cellar stair, breaking both arms below the elbows in the fall. Both affected members were put in casts by a surgeon, and after resting for a few days, she continued safely on the return journey.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Barbour, of Creston, B.C., spent the week visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. Beck.

Aubrey Barr, of Macleod, spent the week end visiting with her sister, Mrs. S. Morey.

Miss Doris Chiaravino, who has been visiting in Calgary, returned last week end.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Prescott entertained a number of friends at their home on Saturday evening.

The Bellevue Bulldogs suffered a defeat to the tune of 4-2 at Lethbridge on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Elias Fisher returned Monday night from Calgary, where Mr. Fisher has been receiving medical attention.

Mrs. W. Beck was a week end visitor to Calgary.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Meade left Friday for their winter vacation, to be spent in Vancouver and western U.S. points.

Mr. Innis, local bank manager, was a business visitor to Calgary over the week end.

Bellevue joined with the rest of the Empire in holding a memorial service for the late King George the Fifth. Service was held in the United church at 11 a.m. Members of the Canadian Legion, B.E.S.L., attended in a body; also the Girl Guides, Boy Scouts, Brownies and Rangers. Rev. R. Upton delivered a very suitable address to a large congregation.

The postponed banquet of the Caledonian Society was held in the I.O. O.F. hall on Wednesday night, and was a most enjoyable affair. Able speakers did honor to the beloved Scottish bard, Robbie Burns. A splendid programme of music was rendered. Haggis formed a very important item on the banquet menu.

The Key ring defeated the Upton rink in a very exciting game at the curling rink on Tuesday night, winning the beautiful Business Men's Cup and silver flower baskets.

Miss Dorothy Cosatick, who has been confined to her home for about a week with flu, is now able to be up and around.

THE NEW YEAR

I am the New Year, and I come to you pure and unstained,

Fresh from the hand of God.

Each day, a precious pearl, to you is given

That you may treasure upon the silver thread of Life.

Once strung can never be unthreaded but stays

An undying record of your faith and skill.

Each golden minute link you then must weld into the chain of hours

That is no stronger than its weakest link.

Into your hands is given all the health and power

To make your life, just what you will, I give to you, free and unstained,

twelve glorious months

Of soothing rain and sunshine golden;

The days for work and rest, the nights for peaceful slumber.

All that I have I give with love unspoken.

All that I ask—you keep the faith unbroken!

WEEKLY NEWS LETTER FROM EDMONTON (By T. B. Windross)

Edmonton, Alta., Jan. 27.—Everything during the past week has been overshadowed by the death of His Majesty King George V., and yet, despite this great historical happening, everything has gone on much as usual. The Alberta government sent a message to the new King Edward VIII, and Alberta's royal citizen, expressing sorrow and loyalty. It was forwarded through Hon. W. L. Walsh, lieutenant-governor, to Lord Tweedsmuir, governor-general, for transmission to London. The message concluded: "We respectfully request your honor to transmit to His Majesty an assurance of our devoted attachment to his Majesty's person." The message was signed by Premier Aberhart.

Perhaps the outstanding event locally during the past week was the annual convention of the U.F.A., which opened its sessions at the Masonic Temple Tuesday morning. The delegates were welcomed to the city by Hon. W. L. Walsh, lieutenant-governor, Premier Aberhart on behalf of the government, and Mayor Joseph Clarke for the city. Two outstanding decisions were reached during the convention. The most important being that of continuance in the political arena. Despite the advice of Robert Gardiner, and former premier R.D. Reid, the delegates turned down a resolution to delay decision on the question for a year, and went further by voting overwhelmingly to continue in politics. The convention decided to leave political action in the hands of the C.C.F. As before, the last election the U.F.A. will carry on its own political action within the provincial boundary, but in the event of a resolution demanding cancellation of the province's contract with the C.C.F. Premier Aberhart's new proposals for the amalgamation and consolidation of school districts are not meeting with universal approval, and there is a possibility it may be modified before coming before the legislature. Strong protests have been heard from Two Hills and other ridings, where some of the proposed features of the system. G. Fred McNally, deputy minister of Education, announced a revolutionary plan of courses in rural schools, that probably will be made compulsory next September. The plan calls for elimination of examinations up to grade nine; elimination of the grade system, establishment of an intermediate school between elementary school and high school; and radical revision of the school curricula.

Some interesting figures relating to the number of dismissals from the civil service since the Social Credit government came into office were revealed during the week. The total of those dismissed was 20, but this doesn't include the number who were dropped from the service because of having reached the age limit set by the civil service act. These have been about 30. In other cases have the reasons given for dismissal been other than "requirements of re-organization." Speaking of these figures, Premier Aberhart stated, "there have been few governments that have made so few changes on coming into office as the present Alberta government has." An interesting comparison would be found between the Alberta record since September 3, 1935, and that of the Saskatchewan government, and the Ontario government especially, where it might be said whole departments were lifted out bodily.

Two new appointments have been made during the week. In Calgary, William J. Douglass will be the representative of the relief appeal and advisory board, and in Edmonton William D. Brady will be the member. All complaints or appeals regarding relief from South of Red Deer should be sent to Mr. Douglass, and those from north of that line to Mr. Brady. In opposition circles it is predicted that there will be another provincial election not later than in 1937. He claims there are evidences of discontent and uneasiness in Social Credit ranks. Perhaps the wish may be father to the thought in Mr. Howson's mind, but only time can tell.

"Sure," replied the hotel keeper, "but that towel was put up before the law was passed."

Absolute Proof Advertising Pays - -

T. A. Grehan, advertisement manager of the Dublin (Ireland) Independent Newspapers, Ltd., says:

"My bunch of newspapers—all nation-wide circulation—have just gone through a period of complete 'silence' lasting almost nine weeks. That is to say we were unable to issue one copy over all that time. Labor trouble was the reason, but let that pass. The point is that as a result of that elimination of our newspapers, the business of our regular advertisers went completely wallop. There was undiluted desolation. Stores here that knew crammed floors regularly as a matter of course, resulting from their budgets of advertising offers, were as idle as a painted ship upon a painted ocean.

"As an old campaigner, it stunned me to see just what the value of newspaper advertising is. Our merchants tried all sorts of other devices to get over the handicap of this no-newspaper period. They tried the street cars, the bill boards, the movies, the hand bills, even the air. No worth-while results accrued although I have reason to know that the cost was as heavy in the aggregate, in some cases decidedly heavier, than if the money involved had been expended in newspapers. And remember this big point, the results in business were definitely unsatisfactory.

"I have been in this live business of newspaper advertising for so many years that I thought I knew how the thing worked. I didn't know. This just-concluded newspaper silence has taught me a volume of things and if there is one thing above all that sticks out it is that a country without its newspapers is a country blindfolded completely. Our people here were positively bewildered. We all went around wondering what in the name of blazes was going on, but the poor bewildered advertiser felt that the wind had completely dropped, his business craft was becalmed, business movement was, as I said at the outset, as idle as a painted ship upon a painted ocean.

"If ever I felt lukewarm on the question of the value of newspaper advertising, and I doubt if I ever did, I am now a 'roaring, tearing, hot-gospeller.' Boys, it has been an amazing eye-opener. So, let us say, out of evil cometh good."

A Crime Invasion

Signs and portents are not lacking in Canada, including the prairie provinces, is to be favored during the coming summer with the presence of a horde of criminals from the United States bent on rapine and slaughter, with the peaceful citizens of this country as their victims.

Indeed, a migratory movement of the dregs and sweepings of the underworld of our neighbor to the south has already commenced and the blotter and ruthless activities are already being recorded on the police blotter in some of the cities across the continent north of the 49th parallel. Recent newspaper reports have noted during bank holdups, safe-blowings and robberies, accompanied in some cases by particularly cold-blooded and unnecessary murders, unnecessary even for the successful prosecution of the unlawful raids on property which are the primary aim of these crime perpetrators.

These undesirable visitors from across the line have made their presence felt in Vancouver, Calgary, Regina, Saskatoon, Winnipeg, Quebec and Toronto and have staged coups, sometimes with the assistance of local craftsmen—with whom they have established contact, and in some cases without such aid.

So far this winter these desperadoes have confined their attention to the cities, principally because, in the western provinces at any rate, climatic conditions make criminal forays on the smaller towns and villages impracticable, if not impossible. With the advent of spring and after snow has disappeared and roads and highways become negotiable with ease, it is reasonable to assume that some of them will divert their activities in the direction of the small town merchant, the village post office and perhaps even to an occasional farm, unless their nefarious deeds are sternly checked.

The reason for this trek of bandits and thugs, armed with gats and sawed-off shotguns, dynamite and nitro-glycerine, crowbars and jimmies is easily explained. They are being driven out like rats from the country which until recently has afforded them a fairly safe domicile and where they have been able to carry on their iniquitous trade with comparative immunity.

The federal government of the United States is tightening up on the robber and the killer. Substantial additions have been made to police and detective appropriations and a campaign to suppress crimes, and especially crimes of violence, is well under way and is being carried out with a greater measure of success than has heretofore attended previous sporadic and isolated efforts in the land of the stars and stripes.

Many of the desperate criminals in the United States who have so far escaped the tightening meshes of the police nets in their own country are becoming fearful of their safety if they continue their illegal practices in their own land and are seeking pastures more green elsewhere. For geographical reasons alone they are turning their eyes towards Canada and their footsteps in this country. The advance guard is already here and more may be expected to come when weather conditions facilitate mobile transit.

The United States authorities are taking this action because public opinion in that country has made its voice heard. The people have demanded that steps be taken, if not to rid the country of serious crime, at least to reduce it to reasonable proportions. Hence, the drive now in progress. Unless, however, the people of this country are to inherit an unwanted legacy from the States, they, too, must make it known to the authorities that they stand four square behind every effort that can be made to repel an undesirable invasion.

The people and the federal authorities of the U.S.A. are to be commended for the effective campaign they are belatedly waging to rid themselves of a serious blotch on their social and economic life, but the people and authorities of this country must co-operate to see to it that the discarded sapling is not grafted on to its own tree.

The people of Canada do not want these visiting "gentlemen." They have no desire to affect them. They have no wish to permit them to rob and slay innocent citizens, nor to allow them to establish schools for crime with their own criminals and potentials as pupils. For that will be the ultimate outcome if these people are treated with complacency and tolerance. Unfortunately, this country has enough lawless without importing more from outside.

Mayor G. G. McGeer, Vancouver, who visualizes this menace, declared recently that the police forces of this country are not adequately equipped to handle effectively such a dangerous invasion, stating in effect, that it is hopeless to cope with 20th century criminals with 19th century equipment.

If Mayor McGeer's inference is well founded it is time to be strengthening the defences. The governments of the country and the provinces will be well advised to spend the necessary money to bring police equipment up to date and to modernize their methods of securing information and of tracking down these foes of society.

Dangerous criminals, such as have infested Chicago and other American cities are not wanted in Canada. They should be caught as soon as they commence operations in this country. Once caught and the proper evidence produced to convict them, the Bench can be relied upon to deal with them effectively, in accord with the renowned tenets of British justice.

Dictionary Of Colors

Presents History Of Each And Gives Correct Name

A dictionary of colors has recently been published by the British Color Council. It consists of two volumes—one containing 300 silk ribbons each distinctly colored, named and tabulated; and the other presenting a history of each color, including the names which have described it in the past, and giving the authority for the present standardization.

While the primary purpose of the dictionary is to supply industry with a standard reference for colors, the work is expected to give valuable aid to artists and writers through an appropriate and accurate vocabulary for the description of shades and tints.

Colors have been "scientifically measured" and graded, making possible the inclusion of new shades, should they be developed in the future. Into a definite and orderly system.

Imagery, history and industry have combined to find names, some of the words having a fascination and delight of their own. Taken at random from the pages are Cyclamen pink, the little grey, battleship grey, sea-foam blue, Chartreuse green, buttercup and banana.

First, they listed colors which could be matched with definitely existing standards, such as Wedgewood blue or post office red; second, those matched by the average of a number of samples whether animal, vegetable or mineral, such as squirrel, carrot or sapphire; and finally, those whose exact duplication is widely argued, according to individual opinion and feeling for color, such as sky blue, blue or old rose.

The third class was by far the most difficult to standardize, because in many cases the original names were used hundreds of years ago, were applied in time to many shades and finally came to lose their original significance entirely.

For sky blue, for instance, 80 different specimens were received; for white there were 60 different samples, and for black there were 40. It was in the classification of these variations that ingenuity had to be developed.

Misunderstandings and conflicts over many colors have now largely ceased. Any industrial product's color may be matched with a silk ribbon, and no industry can claim possession of distinct shades.

All Criminals Dread Chief-Inspector Of Scotland Yard

After 36 years' service, the only man at Scotland Yard who knows the history of every one of the scores of gruesome exhibits in the "Black Museum" is retiring from the London Metropolitan Police. He is Chief-Inspector Ralph Rowe, head of the Criminal Records Office, the most dreaded of all Scotland Yard departments by the habitual criminal. In that department are filed the records of over 600,000 criminals, and it is said at the "Yard" that Rowe knows them all by heart. Although by profession a "fish-taker," he has done much to set criminals on the right road after they have served their sentences.

Alberta's Fur Market

Attracts Buyers

Fur trade going to Edmonton this year promises to equal that of 1935, both in volume and quality, according to dealers.

The first annual sale held for five years concluded with total sales of $100,000 worth of pelts of various kinds. Buyers were present from Milan, Italy, Vancouver, London, Montreal, Seattle, Toronto, New York and Winnipeg.

Among offerings disposed of was a consignment of $16,000 of weasel pelts. A large shipment of mink was also snapped up by buyers. Prices prevailing at the auction compared favorably with those on the Winnipeg market.

The total value of furs bought in Alberta for shipment last year amounted to $2,000,000 and it is expected that this sum will be equalled this year by the end of the season.

Commendation of the quality of furs was expressed by Ricardo Bergamo and Joseph Milstein, of Milan, Italy, who represent one of the largest wholesale fur houses in southern Europe. The Italians made several large purchases, particularly of wolf pelts.

Canadian Scientist Honored

L. S. McLaine Elected President Of American Association Of Entomologists

At the recent annual meeting of the American Association of Economic Entomologists, held in St. Louis, December 30 to January 3, in affiliation with the American Association for the Advancement of Science, L. S. McLaine, chief of the Division of Foreign Pests Suppression, Entomological Branch, Dominion Department of Agriculture, was elected president for 1936.

Mr. McLaine has been associated with entomological and plant quarantine work in Canada since 1913. Largely as a result of his endeavors the Plant Inspection Service of Canada is regarded as one of the most efficient of its kind. The American Association of Economic Entomologists is the largest and most important organization of its kind in the world. The Canadian who was previously elected president of the association was the present Dominion entomologist, Dr. Arthur Gibson, who was elected in 1927.

Station Hand In Australia Proves Reptiles Eat Reptiles

Do reptiles eat reptiles? The problem has just been answered in tropical North Australia at least. A report by Austral News from Darwin states that one of the blacks on a large cattle station went into the bush to secure some choice food and returned with a large iguana or "goanna" lizard, 4 1/2 feet long. A station hand noticed something protruding from the lizard's mouth, gave it a tug and pulled out a snake as long as the lizard itself. The snake, incidentally, had partly consumed a large centipede. Evidently, during the meal the "goanna" had seized the snake unawares.

Royal Bank Of Canada 67th Annual Meeting

Morris W. Wilson, President and Managing Director, Sees Upward Trend of Business Definitely Established
Sydney G. Dobson, General Manager, Reports $50,000,000 Increase in Deposits For Second Year in Succession

Basis for optimism for the immediate future is to be found in the low accomplishments of the past two years, stated Mr. Morris W. Wilson, President and Managing Director, in the course of his address at the 67th Annual Meeting of the Royal Bank of Canada.

"In every province of Canada," said Mr. Wilson, "the improvement in conditions has reduced unemployment and stimulated purchasing power. To the farmers of the west, there is an almost immeasurable difference between a price of 40c and 90c for wheat and there is every prospect that by the end of the crop year, the carryover will be materially reduced. In cities, the burdens and distress due to unemployment have been reduced by an expansion in all lines of manufacturing. In fact, in recent months the volume of manufacturing has exceeded that in the normal base year 1929."

Marked expansion in the automobile and allied industries, the chemical and electrical for textiles and boots, were also noted by Mr. Wilson, who remarked that the activity in the mining and industry during the depression and its expansion in 1934-1935 have been outstanding elements in Canadian recovery.

Mineral. "The payrolls of that industry," said Mr. Wilson, "provided generous wages to many of the men who were employed in other industries were out of work. Without the expenditures for the mining industry, the machinery and other items, the depression in Canada would have been much more severe. In spite of low prices and the low level of demand for building materials, the total volume of mineral production in 1935 again amounted to more than $300,000,000. The volume of gold production attained a new high record of $100,000,000. I am of the opinion that the great period in Canadian mineral production is in the future."

Unemployment. "While employment has shown some improvement during the past year, unemployment is still a major problem. Expenditures for construction are threatening to drain upon the resources of many local communities. While recognizing fully our social obligations, I fear that these expenditures have not always been made with due regard to the public interest. The Government is awaited with great interest."

Sanctity of Contracts. Referring to the repudiation last year by one of the Provinces of important long-term power contracts, Mr. Wilson said that the alleged repudiation was that of illegality, but it is noteworthy that disregarding all ordinary canons of British justice, the aggrieved investors have been denied access to the courts to press their claims. Moral considerations aside and these are not to be lightly disregarded—the policy of repudiating contracts that may have become burdensome because of changed conditions strikes at the very root of our social and economic life. Stated in its lowest terms, moreover, repudiation does not pay. In the past we have made heavy sacrifices to build up and maintain our credit and to secure sound business conditions to remove the stain, this incident will be a permanent blot upon the fair name of our country.

Provincial Finances. The financial position of some of our provinces has been the subject of frequent discussions during the past months. Economic conditions in Western Canada, and abnormally heavy expenditures for relief rendered necessary by the drought, have necessitated large advances from the Dominion Government. It was inevitable that sooner or later the question of control by the Federal Government over the finances of these provinces should be brought up, particularly in view of suggestions put forward that the Federal Government, by lending its credit, should assist in a general refunding of provincial debts so as to reduce the interest charge and thereby assist in balancing the budgets of these provinces. Such assistance by the Federal Government could only be justified if there were some safeguard against excessive borrowings by provinces in the future, a matter which would seem to involve an amendment to our constitution. With due safeguards, however, I believe that some such plan would merit and receive the support of public opinion in Canada.

Foreign Trade. "Seven-eighths of our total foreign trade is accounted for by a few commodities."

Served On Warship "Canada". King George V. was once an officer on a British warship named "Canada." It was in 1880, when that ship was part of the fleet at the North American and West Indian station. He was a sub-lieutenant.

Ninety per cent. of the camphor used in India is burned in tiny quantities as a religious offering.

New Yorkers spend $3,000 daily in telephoning for correct time.

Punishment Fits Crime. Caught ill-treating his horse, a young driver was made to pay the penalty in Cologne, Germany. An indigenous horse was attached to the youth's neck a board bearing the message, "I am a horse-torturer," put him in the shafts and forced him to pull his own cart through the streets.

Assets Up $42,000,000. "Total assets during the year in increased $42,000,000, and are now $809,119,700, the highest ever reached since 1931. Quick assets stand at $423,873,881, or 52.7 per cent of total liabilities."

"Call Loans in Canada increased $2,898,034, while Call Loans outside of Canada decreased $1,000,000."

"Current Loans in Canada have increased by $300,000 and similar advances abroad by $2,573,000. While there has been no corresponding improvement in business conditions, so far recovery has not increased appreciably the demand for bank accommodation."

"Our senior Executive organization was recently enlarged by the appointment of three Assistant General Managers, namely, Burnham L. Mitchell, James Muir and Harold G. Heiler. Mr. Mitchell will continue to supervise Ontario business with headquarters in Toronto, and Mr. Muir and Mr. Heiler will, as heretofore, be attached to Head Office. All three are highly trained bankers of wide experience who will spend their business lifetime in the service of the bank."

"At last annual meeting, I ventured the opinion that we had every justification for looking forward to a year of improvement during 1935. This expectation has been realized perhaps to an even greater extent than we had hoped for at that time. The outlook is still favorable and, as I see it, there is no reason why we should regret our 1935 with feeling of optimism."

SUPREME COURT CONSIDERS LABOR LAWS QUESTION

Ottawa.—The supreme court gave consideration to the constitutional question whether parliament has power to discharge legislative obligations contracted by ratification of an international labor organization treaty or convention. It has never been decided in Canada before.

The question arose in the constitutional reference of eight Dominion new deal statutes passed in 1934 and 1935. Three of them established the 48-hour industrial week, minimum wages and one day's rest in seven. The Dominion claims each law is valid because it arose through a draft convention of the labor organization and, under section 132 of the British North America Act, parliament has power to discharge treaty obligations.

Seven of the nine provinces are ready to attack the Dominion's claim. They insist each law covers provincial matters as determined by the B.N.A. Act and the Dominion cannot gain control simply by sending delegates to Geneva and signing a treaty.

N. W. Rowell, Toronto, presented the Dominion's argument, consisting mostly of readings from the Treaty of Versailles and explaining the set-up of the labor organization.

Mr. Rowell claimed labor laws had become national, rather than provincial in scope because of the growth of industrial problems in recent years. He referred to the first international labor agreement signed in 1906 and dealing with phosphorus in matches. It was ratified in 1914 by Canada after an unsuccessful bill was introduced in parliament in 1910.

The 48-hour convention was adopted by the labor organization in 1919, the minimum wage convention in 1928 and the convention covering one day's rest in seven, in 1921. Mr. Rowell said one reason why Canada did not ratify them until years later was because of the reluctance of Canadian manufacturers to see Canada bound when American manufacturers were not.

Although the provinces, who argue the three laws are unconstitutional, may dispute his law, Mr. Rowell, a veteran parliamentarian and former cabinet minister, gave his opinion the Canadian parliament need not ratify a treaty to make it binding on the country. He claimed that under the constitution, as amended by the 1926 imperial conference and former In-council was all that was necessary to ratify a treaty or international agreement.

Noted Singer Dead

Dame Clara Butt Made First Appearance Before Royalty
Oxford, England.—Dame Clara Butt, British contralto, died Jan. 23. She was nearly 63 years old.

She was educated at the Royal College of Music, and made her debut in a student's performance of "Orfeo" in 1892 before members of the royal family.

Born in Southwick, Sussex, England, February 1, 1859, Clara Butt "discovered" her voice when she was only 12. She won a scholarship at Bristol, where she sang at "penny concerts" and small gatherings. The scholarship gave her three years training at the Royal College of Music in London.

A great singer and a great personality was one of the tributes paid to her. Her contralto voice was considered, by most music critics singularly wide in range and strong in tone. Ballad and oratorio singing became her forte.

Canadian Red Cross

Unit Moving Into Fighting Zone In Ethiopia

Toronto.—Dr. R. V. Bingham, of the Sudan interior mission headquarters here, received a cable advising him a Red Cross unit supervised by Dr. Ralph Hooper, of Toronto, was moving into the southern fighting zone in Ethiopia.

Dr. Hooper's unit includes three other Canadians and a number of Ethiopian assistants. Dr. Hooper, his wife and daughter and the Canadian members of the unit left here in November for Ethiopia. Mrs. Hooper is in charge of the leper hospital at Addis Ababa, and her daughter, are not accompanying the doctor into the fighting area.

The unit was bombed in December, but there were no casualties. The bombs damaged equipment, however.

Alberta's New School Plan

Changes May Be Put Into Effect Next September

Edmonton.—Adoption of a revolutionary new school plan in rural Alberta probably will be made compulsory next September and may be adopted wholly or in modified form in the cities at the same time. It was announced by G. Fred McNally, deputy minister of education and supervisor of schools for the province.

The plan calls for elimination of examinations up to grade nine; elimination of the grade system; establishment of an "intermediate" school between elementary school and high school; and radical revisions in school curricula.

The general plan of the changes has been approved by the cabinet and nothing more than an order by the minister of education, Premier Aberhart, is needed now to launch the new system throughout the province. Mr. McNally said. In the cities, however, the changes rest with the school boards themselves.

POWERS PRESENT ARMED FRONT ON MEDITERRANEAN

Geneva.—Great Britain, France and four smaller powers presented an armed front against any Italian aggression in the Mediterranean area provoked by League of Nations sanctions.

An immediate formal protest against the agreement was made here by Italy.

Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, of Great Britain, in a strong communication backed by France, Greece, Yugoslavia and Turkey, officially informed the League of Nations "grand committee" of 52 nations that these five powers had agreed to give aid to Great Britain if the British fleet is attacked by Italy. In turn Britain gave assurances of support to France, Greece, Turkey and Yugoslavia. Czechoslovakia by agreement with its ally Rumania also gave formal approval to the plan.

Mr. Eden revealed the Anglo-French agreement included "unlimited natural resources, air forces and navies" of the two powers. He disclosed Italy had been informed officially of the agreement by all the nations concerned, which are mutually bound to aid any of their number attacked by Italy.

Mr. Eden denied to the committee Britain and France had made any agreement by which the British would aid the French against a hostile move by Germany threatening France's western border. He said the whole five-power understanding was restricted to the Mediterranean area.

The agreement, he further explained, was arranged in full accordance with article XVI of the league covenant. This provides such aid against any aggression by a member nation which violates that covenant. (In this case Italy, which was outlawed by the league for its war on Ethiopia.)

Oppose Legislation

Four Provinces Attack Validity Of Federal Statute

Ottawa.—New Brunswick and British Columbia joined Quebec and Ontario in attacking the validity of the federal statute establishing a trade and industry commission.

Chief Justice Duff and the five other judges took oaths of allegiance to King Edward. The court adjourned in tribute to King George.

J. W. Harris representing British Columbia expressed alarm at recent court judgment which broadened the powers of the Dominion at expense of the provinces. D. V. White, representing New Brunswick, said his province stood on the same ground as Quebec in opposing the act.

Western Fair Dates

Winnipeg.—Date of western Canada's summer exhibition were set at a meeting of exhibition managers here. They follow: Brandon, June 29 to July 3; Calgary, July 6-11; Edmonton, July 13-18; Saskatoon, July 20-25; Regina, July 27 to Aug. 1.

Hamilton, Ont.—S. J. Hungerford, president of the Canadian National Railways, addressing the annual dinner of the Canadian Construction Association here, urged the association to develop self-supporting projects of reconstruction which would be self-supporting. 2133

THE EMPIRE MOURNS

The bells of Britain toll tonight. Toll for the passing of the king. And the message takes its flight. The Empire bells are echoing. Around the world the solemn strain. A requiem for a noble reign.

—J. Lewis Milligan.

The late King George will live in history as a king who led his empire in dark days; but still more as a king who came closer than any other monarch to the hearts of his subjects, was the tribute paid to the memory of the deceased monarch by Lord Tweedsmuir, Canada's governor-general. The full text of His Excellency's tribute follows:

King George is mourned as the centre of the loyalties of a great empire. But in this hour of universal sorrow, I think of him chiefly as my beloved master and friend. He dignified the throne which he inherited by his courage and faithfulness, and he endeared it to his subjects by the warmth of his sympathy. He was a friend of all, rich and poor alike, sharing to the full in their joys and sorrow. The plain man saw in him one who understood him and whom he trusted. He will live in history as a king who led his empire in dark days, but still more as a king who came closer than any other monarch to the hearts of his subjects. He would wish for no better epitaph than that he feared God and loved and served his people.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King joined with all Canada in expression of tribute to "the greatness and goodness" of King George V, and in voicing the "sense of personal loss and personal sorrow which is felt without distinction of race or class in the hearts of all Canadians."

Mr. King gave out the following statement: It is less than a year since all parts of the British empire paid their tributes, amid rejoicing, to the greatness and the goodness of King George V. Today, these tributes are a part of the world's sorrow.

King George's silver jubilee served to throw into relief both the characteristics of the last quarter of a century, and the character of his late majesty himself. In that period of time—one of the Georgian eras—the world witnessed and humanity endured more of unrest, of suffering, of anguish, and of change than had ever heretofore been known. Amid those difficult and dangerous years, that epoch of strife and insecurity, the British commonwealth of nations had in his late majesty a sovereign who faced every situation with calmness, with confidence, and with courage.

It would be difficult to estimate how much British peoples, and, indeed, the entire world, owed, and will continue to owe to King George's personality and personal example, to his steadfastness, his understanding, his fidelity, and his sagacity.

In the Great War, his late majesty, in virtue of his high office, stood as the symbol of the common effort and concerted action of all parts of the British commonwealth of nations. In the difficult post-war period of reconstruction, when governments came and went, and many constitutional changes were effected, his late majesty again, in virtue of his understanding, and wisdom, his steadfastness and composure, and his high office as head of the state, stood as the embodiment of an unwavering constitutional authority in Great Britain and beyond the seas.

In war and peace alike, King George exemplified upon all occasions his never-failing sense of duty and his broad democratic sympathies. Having regard to the times and to the issues he and his ministers were called upon to face, it can truly be said, there never was a better king.

His steadfast spirit showed him king indeed. And when the war was ended, when of revolution took its hideous place.

His courage and his kindness and his grace. Scattered (or charmed) its ministers. No king of all our many, has been proved. By time so savage to the thrones. Nor won more simple triumph over fate. He was most royal among royal things. Most thoughtful for the meanness in his state. The best and the gentlest and the most beloved.

—John Macfeld.

Federal Responsibility

Alberta Taxation Inquiry Board Makes Report

Edmonton.—Federal responsibility for all unemployment relief and old age pensions; revision of provincial income tax rates aimed at larger revenues; and consideration of a provincial wage tax and of a general sales tax are urged upon the Alberta taxation inquiry board, it was revealed by Premier Aberhart.

The report, completed in December, was presented to the cabinet. It will be studied in the next few weeks by the government. Mr. Aberhart said, and copies will be handed to each member of the legislature.

Constitutional Violations

Geneva.—British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden characterized as "extremely grave" accusations of constitutional violations against the senate of the Free City of Danzig, under the guarantee of the League of Nations. The senate is chiefly accused of refusing to abolish decrees which the council had previously declared unconstitutional, including those removing the right of free speech and freedom of the press.

Act Of Mercy

London.—Opening of the reign of Edward VIII. was marked with an act of mercy. Arthur Charles Mortimer, a soldier, under sentence of death for running down and killing a girl bicyclist with an automobile, received a reprieve commencing his sentence to penal servitude for life.

Two Suspects Dead

Turn Guns On Themselves When Cornered By Police

Vancouver.—A week-old manhunt for Jack Hyslop, 23, and George Lawson, 35, wanted here by police on murder warrants, ended when they turned their guns on themselves as police surrounded their east-end hideout. Lawson died instantly and Hyslop was rushed to hospital unconscious to succumb to a bullet in the head two hours later. Police announced that deaths of the two suspects ended the search for those implicated in the holdup on January 15 of the Powell street branch of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, when three bandits escaped with $12,000 after the bank teller William H. Hobbs, had been fatally wounded, and the manager, Thomas Winsay, had also been shot. Winsay is recovering in hospital.

Two other men are held by police charged with murder in connection with Hobbs' death and two more are charged as accessories.

Senior Admiral Of Fleet

Sir Arthur Fanshawe Dies At Age Of 88

London.—Senior Admiral of the fleet, Sir Arthur Fanshawe, died at the age of 88.

Known as "father of the British Fleet" he was a keen advocate of Anglo-United States co-operation, declaring in 1933, "their combined sea power is so great they could forbid use of the sea to any European power who may in the future attack her neighbor."

He was commander-in-chief of the Australian station from 1902-1905.

NEW RULER OF BRITAIN PUBLICLY PROCLAIMED KING

London.—Amid mediaeval pageantry Edward VIII. was proclaimed king and began his 30th reign since the Norman conquest.

The 41-year-old bachelor, with a new solemnity because of his responsibilities, plunged into the affairs of state. He conferred with Prime Minister Baldwin and then sadly returned to Sandringham.

From the balcony of St. James' Palace, at Charing Cross, again at Temple Bar, and finally at the Royal Exchange, in the heart of the city of London, the new king was publicly proclaimed. Ten thousand troops lined the streets while picturesque trumpeters sounded a fanfare and a 41-gun salute boomed in the honor of the man who symbolizes imperial unity.

And the words of the ancient proclamation were carried throughout the mighty empire, embracing every continent, by wireless—a modern touch to the picturesque proceedings. Many of Edward's 500,000,000 new subjects heard them.

An enormous throng gathered outside St. James' Palace heard the garter king of arms, in mediaeval dress, proclaim Edward VIII. as king.

The king of arms, Sir Gerald Woods Wollaston, stepped to the balcony over the Priory Court. In a firm voice he proclaimed the 41-year-old Edward king, emperor and defender of the faith.

Blasts from silver trumpets rang out as Sir Gerald, a member of the Herald's college, pronounced the resounding words: "God Save the King!"

The throng stood silent, the battery of St. James' park crashed out with the first of its salute of 41 guns—one for each year of King Edward's life.

The new ruler was seen to appear momentarily at a tall window adjoining the crimson-hung balcony. Otherwise he took no part in the traditional ceremonies.

The "faith and constant obedience" of all his subjects were pledged to the new sovereign, confirming his accession to the throne of his late father, the 70-year-old King George V.

The words of the centuries-old proclamation were carried throughout the nation and the Empire, to the new king's 500,000,000 subjects throughout a quarter of the world. Wireless, the modern conqueror of space, was used for the first time in such a British royal ceremony.

The Royal Standard, which had not flown over Buckingham Palace since King George and Queen Mary left for Sandringham before Christmas, then was run up over the palace, a distance of a mile down the Mall. The band struck up the National Anthem.

U. F. A. DECIDES TO CARRY ON IN POLITICAL FIELD

Edmonton.—The United Farmers of Alberta will remain in politics. A resolution calling for the "U.F.A. to cease all direct political activity" was voted down at the annual convention here.

There were but 15 votes recorded for the "cease action" resolution in the men's section, while the United Farm Women of Alberta, meeting in separate session, turned it down unanimously.

Defeat of the resolution means that the farmers' association, whose government of 14 years' standing was swept from office by the Social Credit party last August, will continue political action as an autonomous organization in the federal and Co-operative Commonwealth Federation.

"All talk of going out of politics is utter nonsense," William Irvine, of Wetaakwin, a former member of parliament, told the delegates.

"The first request that you go out of politics came from our enemies. The question must be settled now."

Another delegate, A. Taylor, of Stettler, forecast a short life for the Social Credit regime of William Aberhart.

"It is necessary for us to begin organization right now. I don't think the new government will last two years," he declared.

Banned From U.S.

"Black Eagle", Arriving From France, Refused Admittance

New York.—The announced plans of Col. Hubert Fauntleroy Julian, Harlem's "Black Eagle", to prepare for assassination by making arrangements for his own funeral were summed up when the government ordered him banned from the United States.

A special board of inquiry at Ellis Island decided that Julian had attempted to enter the United States from France without a proper visa.

When he arrived from France, Julian said he expected to be assassinated "any day now" because of many things he had said about Ethiopia.

Railway Board Sitings

Western Itinerary Will Open At Fernie, B.C., February 20

Ottawa.—An itinerary for public sittings of the board of railway commissioners at six important centres of western Canada has been announced. Opening at Fernie, B.C., on Feb. 20, the board will hold further hearings as follows: Vancouver, Feb. 24; Edmonton, Feb. 28; Calgary, March 2; Brandon, March 4, and Winnipeg, March 5.

Chief Commissioner Guthrie and Commissioners Stone and Stoneman will preside at all the hearings, while Commissioner Norris will go west later in time to sit with his brother commissioners at Brandon and Winnipeg.

Door Is Closed

King Edward VIII. Denied Admittance To House Of Commons

London.—Just one place in his entire kingdom—a place he keenly enjoyed visiting—was closed forever to King Edward VIII.

That place is the House of Commons.

Never again will the former Prince of Wales sit in the special gallery seat, reserved for the king's heir, over the clock.

Tradition dictates the sovereign must not enter the precincts of the House of Commons.

Participation by the sovereign in the lords' debate is another thing which "isn't done."

Creates Precedent

Message Of King Edward VIII. Departs From Custom

London.—King Edward VIII., the first British sovereign to fly by aeroplane, has created another precedent.

His message to parliament, in which he said, "I am resolved to follow in the way he (King George) has set before me," was framed in the first person.

Hitherto such messages have been in the third person; for instance, the message from the late King George when he acceded in 1910: "The king knows," etc.

It is only a few years ago since a vigorous campaign against Sunday newspapers was waged throughout the English speaking world. Today newspapers are being advertised on Sundays through a Calgary radio broadcast. What about the Lord's Day Act?

The Crossfield Chronicle, for some years conducted by W. H. Miller, has changed hands, the new owner and proprietor being G. Y. McLean, former accountant in the Crossfield branch of the Canadian Bank of Commerce. Mr. Miller, in turn, will take over the Olds Gazette.

The new hired man from the city had been sent out to harness the horses. It was a cold winter morning, still dark, and he mistook a cow for a horse. "What's keeping you so long out there?" the farmer shouted from the house. "Say, I can't get the collar over this horse's head. His ears are frozen stiff," replied the new man.

The Irish can never be outdone. As proof of this fact, a local Pat—Pat O'Sullivan, to be correct—heard about a guy seeking shelter behind one of the biggest trees on Tim Buck's boulevard. Well, to beat that, he went out and tried to climb one of 'em trees. Now Scotty says: "That's just why an Irishman never reaches the top!"

A new game called the "Editor's Delight" is played this way: Take a sheet of ordinary writing paper, fold it carefully, and enclose a check or bank note sufficiently large to pay up all arrearsages and one year in advance. Keep an eye on the editor, and if a smile adorns his face, the trick works like a charm. Now is the time to hold the joke.

The Dominion's fisheries exports for the first eleven months of 1935 showed an increase of $2,391,000 over the same period of the previous year, and trade with the United Kingdom was up more than a million for the months of January and November. At least one dozen different species of fish, including herring, exceeded by far the million-dollar mark.

Twenty years ago, the Lethbridge Herald announced that the Canadian Coal & Coke Co., Ltd., one of the largest coal mining and coal handling corporations in Alberta, had been absorbed by the North American Securities, Ltd., a syndicate of eastern capitalists, chiefly from Montreal. The big sale at Burnett & Cruickshank's store, Hillcrest, is reported as still going strong.

Although Blairmore's famous "town clock" tells the truth but twice a day, it isn't two-faced.

Quite a number from Blairmore journeyed to Coleman Wednesday night to hear the famous Romilly Boy Singers.

Richard Loeb, convicted with Nathan Leopold of the slaying of Bobby Franks in 1924, was slashed to death by a razor in the hand of a fellow convict Tuesday.

Had we known that Mr. Aberhart would have been so kind as to hoist his liquor advertising ban for three months, we would have voted more than once for him in his election.

The Duke of York, His late Majesty's second son, becomes heir-presumptive to the British throne.

We never knew what a "bone" of contention was till yesterday. We noticed eight dogs fighting over it.

The "white" town of Coleman had their auditor's report and financial statement properly and respectfully printed in the town's newspaper.

W. H. Chappell leaves for Edmonton Sunday where he will meet in conference with Mr. Aberhart and others on matters affecting the new school curricula.

Commencing February 1st, lunches from the dining cars will be available for coach passengers on transcontinental trains of the Canadian National Railways.

"Say, Bill, Where Did You Get That Suit?"

"I got it from Upton."

"Is zat so! Say, I have been asking some of your well-dressed young fellows that question, and they all tell me the same."

"Sure, Upton knows how to measure you, and what good is the finest piece of material if the suit does not fit?"

Drop in and see the new Spring Samples. I can assure you they are wonderful—and have a practical tailor measure you up.
